Extraordinary Costs

In addition to the fees itemized on the reverse side of this schedule, payer and payee shall be jointly and severally liable to bank for all extraordinary expense of whatsoever kind and nature, including, but not limited to, attorney's fees, which bank shall at any time sustain or incur by reason or in consequence of its having agreed to administer an account pursuant to the instructions of payer and payee, or which it may sustain or incur in connection with any litigation, dispute, investigation, or other expenditures incident to such account.

A new fee schedule is issued as of January 1st of each year and is effective for the entire year. Fees are charged in accordance with the fee schedule for the year in which they are due.

Annual fees are due at the beginning of each account year, and other fees are due when the services for which they are charged are rendered.

Fees charged a payer (except those collected when services are rendered) are deducted from money received. Therefore, fee amount should be added to amount intended for credit to the account. Fees charged a payee (except those collected when services are rendered) are deducted from money available for disbursement.
