A secure 100-year history

Our history of consistent, secure banking decisions is one of the many reasons Alaskans rely on First National to help shape their tomorrow.

1922

Candy maker Winfield Ervin founds First National at the corner of 4th Ave. and G Street in Anchorage.

1923

As the Alaska Railroad begins operation, contractors and employees turn to the bank for safety and security.

1943

The United States government trusts First National to supply payroll to troops stationed in Alaska during WWII.

1964

After the catastrophic Good Friday earthquake, bank president D.H. Cuddy is the first Alaska business leader to announce reconstruction plans and unveils a new building project to demonstrate confidence in Alaska.

1967

First National serves as a catalyst for reconstruction following the Fairbanks flood of 1967.

1984

The bank is ranked as the top performing bank in the nation by respected national bank analyst company Keefe, Bruyette & Woods, a title the bank holds for three years.

1989

Money magazine rates the bank as Alaska's safest and one of America's safest 100, on the basis of its equity to assets ratio. Veribanc agrees, rating First National a "Blue Ribbon" bank meeting "the highest standards in the industry," placing it among America's top 10 banks.

1991

First National is the only Alaska bank and one of only seven in the nation to earn an "A" rating from Thomson Bankwatch, Inc. based on its equity strength, loan quality and return on assets.

1998

First National is one of only 13 banks in the nation and the only bank in Alaska to earn the Veribanc Commendation of Excellence for 65 consecutive quarters.

2001

First National Bank Alaska accomplishes an unusual trifecta: It is the only bank in Alaska to be rated "A+" by Weiss Ratings, Inc., the only one to receive a perfect "300" score from IDC Financial Publishing, Inc., and achieves the longest "five-star" rating streak held by any Alaska bank (49 consecutive quarters) from Bauer Financial Reports, Inc.

2013

Betsy Lawer is appointed president of First National. D.H. Cuddy, who had served as president since 1951, continues in his role as chairman of the board of directors. The same year, First National is the only Alaska business to make Forbes' list of America's Most Trustworthy Companies.

2017

For the sixth straight reporting period, First National receives an Outstanding Community Reinvestment Act (CRA) rating from the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency. The CRA legislation ensures banks meet the credit needs of their entire community by evaluating performance in three areas: lending, investments and service. First National receives an outstanding rating for each.

2020

The bank remains open throughout the COVID-19 crisis, serving Alaskans via drive-thru, ATM and online and mobile banking services. Employees across the state work around the clock in a remarkable effort to obtain SBA Paycheck Protection Program loans for thousands of Alaska businesses.

2022

First National turns 100 on Jan. 30, joining a select group of Alaska businesses to reach the century mark. Alaska Business readers vote the bank the "Best of Alaska Business" in the Best Place to Work category for the seventh year in a row, and Best Bank/Credit Union for a second year. American Banker recognizes First National as a "Best Bank to Work For" for a fifth year in a row. Anchorage Daily News readers vote the bank one of the state's top financial institutions in the "Best of Alaska" Awards.
